Would you like to help ensure that books for children and young adults reflect ALL children's lives, families and backgrounds? Inclusive Minds is looking for young people, parents and families to become Inclusion Ambassadors.

"Every time I speak to an Inclusion Ambassador from Inclusive Minds my understanding is broadened and my knowledge increases, and so I can pass that knowledge on to my readers. It is invaluable."

Robin Stevens

"I love helping authors like Robin Stevens ensure authentically inclusive characters. It is exciting and rewarding, and is giving me a useful insight into publishing."

Habeeba (Inclusion Ambassador)

Being an Inclusion Ambassador gives YOU a voice and the chance to change the children's books of the future. If you want to see more inclusive books and have some form of personal experience of diversity – whether that is disability, race, heritage and culture, LGBTQI*, gender representation and identity, family structure, religion, a combination, or something else entirely – get in touch. It's an opportunity to get an insight into the book world and has lots of potential perks (including free books!).
